bio

Born in Santiago de Chile, one of the southernmost southern countries of the world where deserts, waterfalls, glaciers and mountains coexist in a 4000 km coastline, Yael began dancing and singing at a very young age. Always humming made up tunes, she took on formal piano training at age 5, song-writing at 8 and guitar playing at 13. At 19, after receiving a scholarship to attend Berklee College of Music in Boston, she moved to the U.S. Currently based in Los Angeles, Yael continuously collaborates with various songwriters, film-makers and performance artists.

Her new EP "Heartbeat" (out Nov. 10th 2009) features all new material written by Yael. Recorded in Los Angeles and produced by Bill Lefler (Ingrid Michaelson, Tim Myers, Fall Out Boy, Gym Class Heroes) "Heartbeat" includes guest appearances by Danny Levin on trumpet (Lenka), Fil Krohnengold on acoustic guitar and accordion (Meiko) and Joseph Karnes on bass (Jesca Hoop).

Album Review: Yael Meyer – Heartbeat EP | Boom Boom Chik

<http://boomboomchik.com/2009/11/album-review-yael-meyer-heartbeat-ep.html>

"Meyer has one of the prettiest voices I have ever heard. All 5 tracks of the EP just makes you feel good with her sweet and innocent voice. But that isn't all that makes this album worth a purchase/listen. Ms, Meyer perfectly blends, folk, pop, indie and electronic in one smooth delectable treat."

"In the absence of a new Feist album this year (or better, a New Buffalo full-length), the dearth of wry, catchy female folk-pop is beginning to grow as cold and crushing as the oncoming winter. Enter Yael Meyer, a Los Angeles singer-songwriter whose sparkling arrangements and lilting voice raise her above the Hotel Cafe crowd to the air staked out by a certain one-named Canadian."

"...simply-elegant and graceful...The EP sounds like a female version of Death Cab for Cutie meets Jack Johnson..."
